DECOMPOSED BODY FOUND IN A FIELD

REMAINS OF J. P. PULVER OF
LANSING, MICH., FOUND NORTH OF STERLING.

HAS BEEN MISSED SIX WEEKS

Was Former Registrar of Deeds and Clerk of Police Commission at That Place.

BULLETIN

Sterling, Oct. 30.—Special—Henry Pulver, a brother of the man whose body was found in the cornfield north of this city yesterday, and J. H. Bacon arrived here this noon from Lansing, Mich., in response to messages sent from here, and identified the body as that of J. P. Pulver of Lansing.

They reported that the deceased had met with an accident some time ago in which he suffered injuries to his head, and that since that time he had been mentally unbalanced. About six weeks ago he left Lansing and despite a thorough search instituted by his relatives, nothing was heard from him for two weeks, when he wrote his family from Elgin.

It is evident from present developments that he immediately left Elgin and wandered this way, for it has been shown that about three weeks ago he applied for and was given a place to sleep at the home of County Superintendent B. F. Hendricks of Morrison. He left the next morning and no further trace of his movements has been discovered. He was about 45 years of age and left a wife and two children. His body will be taken to Lansing for interment.

Sterling, Oct. 30.—The body of J. P. Pulver of Lansing, Mich., was found in a cornfield on the farm of John Thurm at the head of Eighth avenue Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock. The body was found by Francis Long, who was hunting and accidentally stumbled across the body lying among the weeds.

Body Well Dressed.

The body was well dressed in a dark suit of clothes, while a gold watch lay beside the body as if it had dropped from one of the pockets.

Body in Bad Shape.

The body had evidently lain in the cornfield a number of weeks, if not months. All of the flesh had dropped off from the face and head, leaving only the grisly, grinning skull. The flesh was filled with earth worms, making the find one of the most horrible in recent years.

Has Many Gold Teeth.

A noticeable feature of the body and one which showed the evidence of wealth and refinement is the fact that practically every tooth in the skull was gold filled.

Tablet Near Body.

The body was lying on its back, the left arm doubled back under the head as if for a pillow, the right arm outstretched and the feet stretched widely apart. Beside the body was a tablet on which was written the name "J. P. Pulver," Lansing, Mich.

Looks Like Suicide.

Although nothing was found on or about the body to indicate suicide the position of the body, reclining, is that such was the case or that Pulver was taken suddenly ill in the cornfield and died there alone.

Two Blocks From Farm House

The place where the body was discovered is practically two blocks north of the last house on Eighth avenue. No one has any recollection of anyone by that name being in the vicinity, nor has anyone answering that description been seen in that neighborhood.

Relatives Notified.

Communication with the authorities of Lansing, which was established at once by the Sterling newspapers, disclosed the fact that J. P. Pulver had been missing from that city for the past six weeks, during which time his relatives had been constantly searching for him. The relatives were told of the horrible discovery at Sterling, and at once notified the Sterling officers that they would come to that city at once, arriving at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon. Accordingly the inquest was postponed until after their arrival. An effort to perform an autopsy last night failed because of the

OSHKOSH TEAM MAY TRAIN HERE

FAVOR ON DIXON AS PLACE TO TRAIN.

There is a possibility that the Oshkosh team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, which won the league pennant this season, may train in Dixon next spring if Manager Joe Killian can be shown that patronage of Sunday games will be sufficient to help stand the expense of the training visit.

Two years ago the team trained at Sterling and reported ready for the opening scheduled game in fine condition. Because of adverse condition the players, of whom Grover Tracey of this city is one, did not go away from Oshkosh last spring, but Manager Killian is desirous of having the players report a little earlier next year and he wishes to work in this section of the country if arrangements can be made.

He will go to Oshkosh next week to meet the owner of the team and will attempt to interest him in the Dixon proposition, and if that official looks with favor upon the proposition Mr. Killian will take the matter up with Dixon fans to ascertain their attitude.

The presence of the team in Dixon during the spring training months would be a good thing for the city, as probably two dozen of the ball tossers would be here for several weeks. It would also stimulate interest in the game and encourage the local players to greater efforts.

The accident occurred on the hill south of the Third street arch and was occasioned by the breaking of the bolt in the whiffletree, which allowed it to fall onto the horses' heels and prevented the driver controlling the animal. Both occupants of the wagon were thrown out, Nagle's left leg being broken just below the knee, while Mr. Ogden received a painful gash in the head. Both were given the services of physicians.

FISH WARDENS MAKE BIG HAUL

TAGUE, WELCH AND McDOWELL ARREST ROBERT WHITE OF STERLING WEDNESDAY

CONFISCATE WIRE TRAPS-NETS

Wardens Spend All Night on River
In Heavy Rain Waiting for Fisherman.

BULLETIN.

Sterling, Oct. 30.—Special—Bert White, arrested for illegal fishing, was brought before Justice W. P. Palmer today and fined $100 and costs. This is the first conviction since Rock river has been made a fish preserve.

The biggest haul of illegal fishing paraphernalia that has been made since Rock river and its tributaries were made a state fish preserve was accomplished yesterday morning by Deputy Fish and Game Wardens Tague of this city, Welch of Morrison and McDowell of Rock Island, when they arrested Robert White of Sterling and confiscated his nine wire traps, a large number of nets and sufficient fish to secure a conviction on at least ten charges.

The arrest of the fisherman, who was taken to Sterling for arraignment today, was accomplished only after the deputies had laid in wait throughout the heavy rain all night Tuesday night, thereby catching White in the act of working his traps in the early dawn Wednesday.

More Developments

With Deputy Welch waiting at White's cabin, which is located four miles up the river from Sterling, and Officers Tague and McDowell following him as he made his trip around to his traps, the fisherman had little chance to escape and his arrest was easily accomplished. A hay rack was secured and loaded high with the traps, nets, etc., and the tired and wet officers hurried to Sterling, where White and his illegal property were turned over to Warden Clavin, who arranged for the fellow's hearing today.

Interesting developments may follow this arrest, as White has confessed to having sold fish in large quantities to many Sterling and Rock Falls people, which is a violation of the law and which involves the purchasers of the fish equally with the one who sells them. An effort will be made to secure the names of all purchasers and they too may be prosecuted.

SAVED HER SISTER

By MILDRED CAROLINE GOODRIDGE.

Through the village street poured night's laggard legion, blind with rain. It was an hour of dark doors and shrouded houses. Anon the lurking moon would leap forth. One tired wayfarer passed a rose-hung gate. The parklike solitude beyond it attracted him.

Lane Allen, that was his name—Lane Allen now—Wallace Irwin once. In the criminal annals that last name was covered with sin and stain, yet as the mournful eyes of the young man swept the lovely scene about him, the grand mansion nestled in a brilliant glow of light, their depths showed the patience and suffering of a martyr rather than the remorse or desperation of a vicious nature.

Some notable function was in process at the house, the home of Gordon Brooks. Bright forms showed on the porches. Then one light, airy figure flitted so closely past the intruder that he shrank back. The glinting moonlight showed a beautiful woman in evening dress. Her manner was agitated. She ran a few yards beyond the rustic seat where the intruder rested. From the near shrubbery a man advanced. Their hands met. Weeping violently, the woman's head was pillowed on his shoulder.

"It is wrong," the wayfarer heard her sob, "but we are never to meet again!"

"I start for the other side of the world with the morrow," spoke the man. "Beatrice, you belong to another, my life is chained to one long sorrow, but we can think of one another, and know that we have been true to ourselves and heaven."

"Always—always. Ronald, it was my mother's wicked longing for wealth and social distinction. I am the wife of Gordon Brooks, unloving, but faithful. It is my life sacrifice."

Lane Allen shrank still further back. A man came sinking down the path.

"Oh, if I am Worthy, Take Me!"

He bore the semblance of an upper servant. He peered from behind a sheltering bush. Then he started on a run back for the house.

Almost immediately there came into view a new figure. A radiant young girl hastened across the path. She joined the man and the woman.

"Ronald," she cried, "go, fly! Beatrice, return to the house at once. That spy, Dallas, has followed you. He has gone to send your husband here. If you are discovered, his jealous rage will make a scandal."

"Good by, good by!" spoke the man tenderly. The woman clung to him, and then, as he retreated to leave the grounds, she started to regain the house from the rear.

The girl who had warned them stood with her hand pressed against her breast. She stole towards the path. Her advance brought Allen within her view.

"Who are you?" she faltered, faintly.

"A stranger."

"But you have seen—"

"All. That need not alarm you. I will go and—forget."

"Wait—wait—" She seized his arm in feverish haste. He followed her glance. The spy was returning, and with him a person the wayfarer doubted not was the husband of the unhappy wife.

"Take my hand," panted the girl to Allen. "Place one arm about my waist. Bend your face as if speaking to me. Oh, do not misunderstand me!"

"As soon as an angel!" spoke Lane Allen reverently. You can trust me—as an own brother."

Thus they stood. The glamour of the moonlight irradiated seething lovers. The piteous mixture of dread, hope, shame and embarrassment in the girl's bewitching face appealed to the sterling manliness of her companion. All the time, however, the touch of her hand, the closeness of her perfumed breath swayed the lone, friendless wayfarer as though he were transported to a new world of contentment supreme.

Gordon Brooks came rushing down the path. He lifted his cane to strike. Then he started back as he saw—not his wife, but his sister-in-law. A great laugh of relief left his lips.

"You, Ariadne?" he spoke. Then he ran back at the mean spy lurking near at hand. "You scoundrel!" he hissed. "How dared you malign my wife! That—and that!"

Twice he struck the miscreant with his cane, straight across the face, knocking him down. Dallas squirmed out of the way.

"You dootard!" he screamed. "Still are you fooled!"

"Go!" shouted Brooks. "If I ever see your evil face again I will horse-whip you."

"Aye, I'll go, for I hate you—hate you since you did indeed horse-whip me once, and I swore to ruin you. I have failed this hour, but later—I swear I will wipe out this last insult and kill you!"

The wretch drew out a dagger with a jeweled handle, waved it menacingly, and Gordon Brooks returned to the house.

"You have saved my sister," whispered Ariadne Beltrand, tumultuously. She had drawn away from the man in whose arms she had, to him, so deliciously rested. Her face was one deep pained flush. "I dare not offer you reward."

"I am already rewarded," he said, and stooped to pick up a rosebud that had fallen from her bodice.

"You will forget?" she pleaded, clasping her hands beseechingly.

"Everything, except you—you I can never forget," and Allen placed the rosebud within his breast, bowed with the grace of a courtier and was gone. She kissed her two hands after him in token of heartfelt gratitude.

Allen wandered far from the scene, but some influence drew him back to the little town. It was to learn that Gordon Brooks had been found murdered in his own garden, a jeweled stiletto sunk deep in his heart.

Dallas was suspected. He had disappeared. There were distressing rumors as to Mrs. Brooks, however. It was known that she had never loved her husband. Then, too, her former lover was on his return to Brampton. Gossip was weaving a cruel net of suspicion and scandal about the suffering, innocent wife.

Allen chanced to note in the local paper an advertisement. It asked communication with "the stranger who had passed through the Brooks garden" the night of the great social function. It directed him to Mr. Brownthorpe, lawyer of the estate.

The next day Allen knew that his evidence as to the stiletto and the threat of Dallas would forever exonerate Mrs. Brooks. Once more he met Ariadne.

As they entered the court room the next day, Allen gave a great start as he observed seated beside the judge a man whom he recognized. He turned pale. Then he spoke to his beautiful companion.

"Miss Beltrand," he said, strangely. "I go to the witness stand to meet my doom—but all for your sake."

The eyes of the judicial visitor were constantly fixed on the witness. As Allen left the stand, completely exonerating Mrs. Brooks, this person called out:

"Arrest that man. He is an escaped convict."

There was a wild scream. Miss Beltrand had fainted away. Allen was taken back to the state penitentiary to serve out an unexpired term of twenty years.

He was innocent of the embezzlement charged, but his case had been rushed through. Now the perseverance of a woman, money, a gifted lawyer proved him guiltless.

Pardoned by the state, reinstated in his old position, awarded large money reparation, Lane Allen left that great tomb of blighted hopes, a man among men.

At the very threshold of the grim jail Mr. Brownthorpe and Miss Beltrand met him.

She put both hands into his own, just as she had in the garden that eventful night of their lives, for she read the glowing longing in his eyes.

"Oh, if I am worthy, take me!" she cried, "for I love you, love you, love you!"

DO NOT DECEIVE OBSERVING

Veteran Says Actors and Actresses Utterly Fail to Convey Matrimonial Illusion.

"Very few actors create a matrimonial illusion on the stage," said the gray-haired man. "Stage managers ought to look into that."

"Playing couples hammer it into the heads of the audience that they are regular Darbies and Joans, but they don't look the parts and they don't act them. In real life married couples have little tricks of looking at each other, of speaking to each other, particularly of ignoring each other, that advertise to all and sundry the matrimonial noose. Stage folk ought to observe and imitate some of those signs. What good does it do to harp on the tie that binds while omitting all that byplay which denotes more surely than any words the existence of the tie?"

"Now and then, it is true, an actor, either by accident or design, falls into a part in which he seems to be literally plastered with marriage certificates. An actor in a current play gives that impression. Even if there was not a line to indicate his marriage to his stage wife no one could for an instant doubt the relationship."

"The way he talks to her, the way he doesn't talk to her, gives the case away. But that illusion is rare. Hatred, jealousy, revenge, love are expressed with more or less fidelity. Then why is it that the jag-trot of commonplace married life seems beyond the scope of most actors and actresses?"

A Guarantee.

"Do you think your enemies can dig up anything against you out of your past?"

"I don't see how they can. We've had the same servants for fifteen years."

Urge Farmers to Raise Fish.

"There are signs that the time is not far distant," said William E. Meehan, former state commissioner of fisheries and present director of the public aquarium in Fairmount park, "when farmers will consider fish culture as important a part of their calling as the raising of grain or potatoes or poultry. When that day arrives the fish industry of Pennsylvania will rank as high as any other industry. There are few farms in Pennsylvania without springs, a stream and swampy land of which no use is made and upon which the farmer pays taxes without any return. Most of the streams and the springs and the swamp land could be utilized for the rearing of fish. Under intelligent care an otherwise useless piece of wet land can be made to yield as much, acre for acre, as the most fertile land." — Philadelphia North American.

New Use for Moving Pictures.

Moving pictures are used by a French scientist in the study of the deformation of metals when strongly compressed by the hydraulic press. In some cases he uses a brass tube of three inches diameter and .04 inches thickness of metal and observes the appearance of the surface when the tube is flattened out by pressure. Sometimes the tubes are filled with a liquid and then compressed. Various figures appear on the surface of the metal, and moving picture views are taken at the rate of 15 a second. By throwing the views on a screen it is easier to study the effects than by direct observation.

Unique Decoration.

W. T. Stead, who went down with the Titanic, did not disapprove of the wearing of decorations, but he considered the insignia now in use strangely inadequate. He resolved to create new insignia to replace those he deemed to be insufficient. He chose a trousers button. This decoration he conferred on those he deemed worthy. One day he had with Nicholas II. a conversation on peace. The ideas of the emperor of Russia pleased him greatly and at the close of the interview Mr. Stead took one of his buttons from his pocket and hooked it upon the breast of the czar.

HIT AND LAUD CURRENCY BILL

Speakers at Bankers' Meet in Chicago Give Opinions of Act.

MEASURE IS CHIEF TOPIC

Forgan Says U. S. Confuses Two Branches of Banking and Make All Institutions Suffer for Abuses of Few.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—The speakers at the convention of the Investment Bankers' association in session here expressed their opinion on the proposed currency reform law. Two gave their approval and one denounced it.

The speakers were William A. Scott, director of the course of commerce and professor of political economy at the University of Wisconsin, and Edmund D. Fisher, deputy comptroller of the city of New York.

Throughout the day's session the currency bill was the chief topic of discussion. Reports from many committees were received and the income tax law was touched upon. This is to be considered more thoroughly.

Criticizes Reserve System.

In urging the necessity for education to eliminate bad banking practices Professor Scott pointed out the distinct differences between investment and commercial banking. He criticized the entire banking reserve system as "an invitation to confusion."

"Our state banking laws do not require, usually, the tying up of capital and surplus funds for any particular kind of security," he said, "but they usually open the doors wide for investment in real estate and mortgages. While that is perfectly legitimate, there is nothing whatever in the legislation to suggest that any relation of this sort should be maintained."

"Our entire reserve system is an invitation to this sort of confusion. We know what happens to the reserves that are deposited in our banks. Under present conditions in the United States practically the only use that can be made of them is investments in New York on the stock exchange in call loans."

Only Investment Security.

"There they go. And it is generally supposed that that is a very liquid form. As a matter of fact, that is nothing but an investment security. They have the appearance of being liquid. But we know perfectly well that under some conditions call loans are no more liquid than the paper which lies back of them, namely the bonds and stocks, and they are not liquid at all."

"I think absolutely the worst and most serious practice in American banking, which leads constantly to this confusion, is the basis upon which lines of credit are granted to ordinary business customers."

"Credits are granted as a rule on the basis of a man's total wealth and not on the basis of the amount of commerce he transacts, and when a line of credit has thus been established the average man considers it a part of his working capital and the average bank considers it as such."

Edmund D. Fisher, in discussing "Municipal Financing," told the delegates that he believed a period of increased wealth and new opportunities would follow the passage of the currency bill.

"The Glass-Owen bill will not prevent the investment banker from borrowing money on securities during the time they are in his hands for placement with the ultimate investor," said Mr. Fisher. "It will remove the tendency to stimulate prices through a plethora of money market. There will be a broadening demand for investment and municipal bonds will again take the place they once held in the market."

European cities, said Mr. Fisher, have a higher credit than American cities because their standard of citizenship is entirely different. Americans are more subject to the whims of political sentiment.

Forgan Attacks Bill.

Asserting the government has confused two entirely different branches of banking and proposes to make the national banks suffer for abuses which only a handful have had any connection, David R. Forgan, president of the National City bank of Chicago, made an attack on the pending currency bill. He declared the business interests would be the first to suffer. He said the bill would cut deep into the resources of the city banks, 60 per cent. of whose total deposits now come from the country banks, and in so doing would reduce by the same degree the amount available for commercial loans.

The whole situation, he said, was due to confusion of national bank operations with those of the big private institutions in Wall street, acting as promoters and dealers in stocks. With them, he confessed, are associated "a few" big New York banks.

Mr. Forgan attacked the theory of unequal credits, expressing regret that President Wilson holds to it, and asserted that on the contrary the banks are seeking everywhere to sell credit and competing with each other in that enterprise.

Humorous Court Happenings.

Judge M. W. Pinckney at a recent banquet of lawyers responded with two stories to show that there is some humor associated with such a serious thing as the law. In Dawson City a colored man, Sam Jones by name, was on trial for felony. The judge asked Sam if he desired the appointment of a lawyer to defend him. "No, sah," said Sam. "Ise gwine to throw myself on the ignorance of the cote."

Here is a story credited to O'Connell, and illustrating the severe penalty imposed under the old criminal law of England as well as the grewsome humor of the early English judge. The jury had returned a verdict of guilty in the case of a man accused of stealing a valuable watch. The judge in sentencing the prisoner, said, "You reached for time and found eternity."

DYNAMITERS TRIAL ON

ATTORNEYS FOR ACCUSED ADVANCE NEW POINTS.

Statute Was Not Enacted Until Two Years After Alleged Conspiracy.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—The fight for the freedom of Frank M. Ryan and 29 other convicted officials and members of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers began in the United States circuit court of appeals before Judges Francis J. Baker, Christian C. Kohlman and William H. Seaman.

The opening statement for the defense of the men was made by Elijah J. Zolline, one of their attorneys. He was followed by Chester H. Krum.

Frank M. Ryan, president of the international association, was in the courtroom when the hearing opened. With him were Richard Houllihan of Chicago, John H. Barry, former vice-president, and Paul J. Morin, both of St. Louis.

Charles W. Miller, district attorney at Indianapolis, Ind., where the men were found guilty December 28, 1912, will defend the stand taken by the lower court in its rulings on points of law and also defend the verdict of the jury in the district court at Indianapolis.

Mr. Zolline in his argument contended that the lower court should have unshaken the indictments and further that the defendants had been sentenced to double punishment, both for aiding and abetting and conspiracy, he latter being the charge on which they were convicted.

Chester H. Krum, for the defendants, followed Mr. Zolline and advanced several new points.

"The indictments charging the carrying of dynamite on passenger cars were based on two federal statutes," said Mr. Krum. "The first of these was passed in 1886. Several years later it was repealed. The second statute under which the charges were brought was one passed in 1908."

RUB SORE, LAME BACK STOP BACHACHE AT ONCE

Back hurt you. Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had back ache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt, or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

Military Ignorance.

"The late Gen. F. D. Grant," said a Washington official, "was once complaining in my hearing about an ignorant officer. He likened this officer to a certain Private Cheney. 'Where is Cheney? What the dickens has become of Private Cheney?' So he declared, Cheney was sought for one whole afternoon; but no tidings of him turned up until a comrade finally said: 'Cheney? Why, I saw Cheney about two hours ago. He was talking about going to get some gunnecotton to sew a button on his pants with, and that's the last been heard of him, I believe.'"

Demand for Attar of Roses.

The fancy of society women for perfumes and especially for attar of roses has sent up the prices to the highest on record. Attar of roses, which is extremely rare and is perhaps the most valuable perfume in the market, now is commanding almost a prohibitive price. Despite the cost, however, the whim of women has taken to that as the rarest and most delicate of perfumes. Dealers in Fifth avenue, New York, say that they have the greatest difficulty in obtaining enough to supply the orders of their customers.

CAME INTO HIS OWN

By WALTER JOSEPH DELANEY.

Elmer Dodge was a villain. He realized it fully, worked on that basis, had no particular qualms of conscience over the fact and thought only of being shrewd enough to mask his evil doings from the eyes of the others, and in the general round-up evade the law.

Cyril Marsh was a bright, honest, energetic young business man. He was the employer of Dodge, had been kind and liberal with him, never suspected his duplicity and was friendly at times even confidential with him.

It was just at dusk one late fall evening that master and man left the trade brokerage office of young Marsh. The latter carried a long, sealed envelope in his hand. Its possession seemed to give him intense satisfaction.

"Dodge," he spoke, as he paused at the iron letter box at the corner and slowly allowed the envelope to glide from view, "there goes my fate."

"Indeed?" questioned his companion.

"Yes," replied Cyril. "It covers the strangest incident in my life. I always knew I had a relative, a half-uncle, out in Idaho, and that he was enormously rich, but at odds with my dead father, and all his kin. What was my surprise, yesterday to receive a letter from him. It was chilling, almost offensive—characteristic of the crabbed, prejudiced old man. He wrote to ask me to send my photograph and a few details of my business career. I could construe it in but one way: Lonely, childless, possibly nearing the end of his loveless life, a thought of old family ties had come to him. He forbade me to keep up a correspondence with him, to seek him out, but in time he intimated he might see fit to leave me a slight remembrance."

"Why, he may intend to make you his heir," suggested Dodge.

"I hope so. Think of what I could do with a little more capital! Only the fear that I might get overloaded keeps me from buying goods that I know will double in a year in value. I will show you the letter I received in the morning. It is in my desk."

Dodge gave his companion a shrewd sidelong look. They parted a street or two farther on.

"Going home?" questioned Cyril.

"Think I will," replied Dodge—"sort of tired tonight."

The minute his employer was out of sight, however, Dodge went straight back the route they had followed together. Those masked eyes of his glowed with an eager, unholy light. His excited manner showed that his active mind was aflame with some all absorbing idea.

Dodge reached the office he had so recently left. He had a key to its door. Also, unknown to his unsuspecting employer, one to his desk. Pulling down the shades and turning on the electric light, the surreptitious visitor proceeded to open his employer's desk.

"Ah, I have it!" he muttered at last, and he sat there for some time pouring over the letter that Cyril had received from his distant relative the preceding day.

Long and ardently Dodge studied it. Then he sat with it in his hand, thinking—thinking. And then he seemed to have evolved a coherent plan of action. His face glowed with satisfaction and resolve.

"I'll dare to do it," he told himself rapidly. "The stake is big, the risk small, chance and luck big elements."

Within the hour Dodge had written a letter to Cyril's uncle, signing Cyril's name in his own handwriting. Then going to his desk he secured a photograph of his own. This he inclosed in the letter, sealed the envelope, addressed it to the man in Idaho, placed it in his pocket and left the place.

Dodge mailed the missive at a letter box, but not the one in which Cyril had deposited his letter. He scanned the time schedule on the box. "No more collections until morning," he soliloquized, "so I have plenty of time in which to operate."

Dodge proceeded to a drug store. He secured a strong chemical combination of liquids that made even the drug clerk stare. This he carried in his hand until he reached the letter box where his employer had dropped the letter to his uncle.

Watching, to be sure that he was not observed, Dodge poured the contents of the phial in his hand through the slot in the letter box. A faint wreath of vapor or smoke arose from the box.

"Within an hour everything in that box will be cinders," he chuckled. "Cyril Marsh's uncle will never receive that letter!"

That was the prelude. Three months later Cyril Marsh failed in business. A bad market, a miscalculation as to prices in a time of panic swept away all that he had.

He sold his watch and chain to pay off Dodge his last month's salary, and they parted—the villain gloating over a brilliant scheme his evil mind had invented, Cyril immersed in dejection and unhappiness.

For with his failure the aristocratic Darleys had closed their doors against him, and he had loved the daughter of that proud house—Edna.

To strive to make her forget her humble lover they had sent her abroad. A sweet note came to Cyril, however, telling him that oceans could never divide their love.

Then Cyril had started out into the world to carve a new name and fortune. It was a hard task. He wandered through half a dozen states, earning a precarious income as desultory work came to his hand.

It was way out in Idaho that one evening traversing a lonely country road he came upon a strange scene. A farmer armed with a pitchfork held the chauffeur of a big touring car at bay.

"You ran over my cow back yesterday!" he was shouting as Cyril came up.

"Well, just make out your bill and send it to my employer in Crofton," said the chauffeur.

"Who is your employer? Don't you dare move till you fix this damage," cried the farmer, "or I'll puncture your tire with this fork!"

"There is his card," and the man handed the farmer a bit of paste-board.

"Oh, that's all right," spoke the latter at once, as his eye ran over the name it bore—"Mr. Cyril Marsh is good for all I'll claim."

"What's that?" fairly gasped the wanderer.

He could not rid his mind of the strange incident as he pursued his journey to Crofton. A dim light began to glow in his mind as inquiry developed the fact that "Cyril Marsh" was the heir of the wealthy John Marsh, who had died a few months previously.

"Cyril Marsh located the princely residence to which he was directed. He glanced in at a lighted window. "As I had begun to suspect," he breathed with a strange smile on his face as he recognized a man inside the room.

"I wish to see Mr. Marsh," he advised the servant at the door, and was shown into a reception room.

"What can I do for you?" spoke a familiar voice, and then its owner paused, white as a sheet.

"Mr. Elmer Dodge," observed the real Cyril Marsh, quietly, but with a latent forcefulness, "I have come to relieve you of your stolen identity."

Then the villain slunk out of the place and the rightful heir came into his own. And then the Darleys sent for absent Edna, for money was a lodestone to them—and true love was garlanded with happiness.

MISTRESS OF ALL SPORTS

Frenchwoman Has Made Remarkable Record In Everything That She Has Undertaken.

Miss Marie Marvingt is known in France, her native land, as the first sportswoman in the world. She has the astonishing record of being able to swim, ride, shoot, fly, climb, fish and drive a motor car, and she does everything perfectly. It is nothing to her to scale a mountain, to hunt big game; she rides a bicycle better than most people; she skates and skis beautifully. In 1902 she was the best shot at a great international congress, and carried off the prize from hundreds of competitors; three years later she won the gold medal of the French Sports club, a distinction no woman had ever held before. Moreover, it is a distinction to which very few men have attained.

At the age of ten she began to learn to swim, and she once succeeded in swimming ten miles two minutes short of Miss Kellerman's time, says the Daily Telegraph. Many interesting experiences fell to her when she climbed the Matterhorn, the Jungfrau and Monte Rosa, but her Alpine achievements are as nothing as compared to her feats in the air. Miss Marvingt has been up with several well-known balloonists, including Mr. Granier, with whom she went from Nancy to Southwold, about 600 miles, including 150 over the open sea. This intrepid sportswoman has also turned her attention to aeroplanes, and her dream is to invent a model that might be used as an ambulance to convey wounded soldiers from the field of battle to the base hospital.

Wireless Phone 310 Miles. Wireless telephone messages have been exchanged successfully between the famous wireless station at Nauzen, a village near Berlin, Germany, and the Technical museum at Vienna, Austria, 310 miles away. With a new machine that has been perfected newspaper articles read in the Nauzen station could be heard distinctly at Vienna and other intermediate stations. It is prophesied that still stronger machines will make it possible to talk across the Atlantic.

Dramatic Notes

DIXON OPERA HOUSE.

Miss Jane Gordon's wrap, which she will wear in the third act of Within the Law, Bayard Veiller's play which comes to the opera house tonight, is an interesting example of the new fad for temperamental garments, which is being stimulated by the Parisian couturiers. This charming evening coat has a drapery that suggests also the Poiret hip-girdle. The wrap has a most interesting scarf attachment which may be dropped at the front to form a graceful rever, or tossed over the shoulder, the tassel hanging below the waistline at the back. The wrap is made of brown velvet and is lined with olive green satin veiled with brown chiffon. The garment, as well as being beautiful in line and richly harmonious in color, is full of dramatic suggestion and lends itself well to the part played by the actress in this stirring drama.

FAMILY THEATRE

For the last half of the week beginning tonight Manager Slothower announces Sabarger and her posing dogs as a feature. This act has played the leading vaudeville theatres on the Pacific coast and met with big success. Antiquity of Hymns.

While hymns as we know them today are a comparatively recent innovation in church services, they are a very ancient institution and existed long before the Christian era. Many important collections of hymns date back to about five hundred years before Christ, though of course hymns existed long before that period. Among the collections which have come down to us from then are the Sanskrit "Rig-Veda," a Chinese "Book of Odes," the "Buddhist Hymns," the Grecian "Homeric Hymns" and the "Odes of Pindar." "The Latin Hymns," or hymns of the western church, date from the fourth to the twelfth centuries, while the "Lutheran Chorales" date from the sixteenth century. The hymns which play so prominent a part in the services of the modern Protestant churches were not in wide general use until about 1860.—Etude.

Funeral Services for Late Millionaire in Gotham.

Steel Magnate's Son Increased Sum Left Him by Father by Three Millions.

New York, Oct. 30.—The body of Charles G. Gates, who died suddenly at Cody, Wyo., is expected to reach this city on Friday. The funeral services will be held at the Madison Episcopal church at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Gates will be buried beside his father in Woodlawn cemetery. Because the mausoleum erected by the Gates family is still in process of construction, the body will be placed temporarily in the family vault.

Cody, Wyo., Oct. 29.—The body of Charles G. Gates is speeding eastward over the Burlington in a special train, accompanied by the five companions who participated in the elk hunt ended so tragically. The special will arrive in Chicago tonight.

The casket was escorted to the depot, a mile from Cody, by Ned Frost and nine assistants of this famous guide. The ten men each received from Gates a check for $100 as a testimonial of his appreciation of their services during his hunting in the mountains near Yellowstone park.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 30.—Work on the mansion which the late Charles G. Gates was erecting here was stopped on orders telegraphed by the general contractors in New York to their Minneapolis representatives. It was announced that nothing further would be done until the architects and builders had consulted with the widow and mother of the dead multimillionaire.

Despite his reputation as a "spender," Charles G. Gates, son of John W. Gates, who dropped dead at Cody, Wyo., left an estate far in excess of the fortune left him by his father. It is believed that the bulk of his estate, estimated at nearly $4,000,000, will go to his widow, who was Miss Florence Hopwood of Minneapolis.

WILSON WEDDING BIDS READY

Number of Guests at Marriage Not Yet Determined.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Invitations for the White House wedding on November 25 are being addressed. The invitations are engraved simply and read:

"The president and Mrs. Wilson request the pleasure of the presence of— at the wedding of their daughter, Miss Jessie Woodrow, to Mr. Francis Bowes Sayre on November 25, 1913, at half after four o'clock, at the White House."

The number of invitations has not been finally decided upon, and detailed plans for the wedding are not yet ready for announcement.

JURY HAS THE EATON CASE

Judge Tells Men to Convict if Guilt Was Proven.

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 30.—The case of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, widow of the late admiral, was given to the jury after Justice Aiken had given a brief charge to the jury. In making his charge Justice Aiken laid considerable stress upon important points of law as related to this case and instructed the jury as to their duty that if in their minds guilt had been clearly proved, and if it had not, to return an acquittal.

$1,500 Hodgins Prize Divided.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The Smithsonian Institution announced that the Hodgins prize of $1,500 for the best treatise "On the Relation of Atmospheric Air to Tuberculosis" has been equally divided between Dr. Guy Hinsdale of Hot Springs, Vt., and S. Adolphus Knopf of New York city.

DIPLOMATS URGE
U. S. TO INTERVENE

Wilson Hears Envoys in Mexico Criticize for Failure to Restore Peace.

NEW PLANS READY SOON

President Will Announce Proposition to Create Constitutional Rule to Cabinet Friday—Rebel Agent Is Coming.

Washington, Oct. 30.—President Wilson learned here that while no collective opinion was reached at the recent conference of diplomats in Mexico City, many of them criticized the United States severely for not taking such steps as would restore tranquility in the republic.

Mr. Wilson will submit his new plan for restoring peace in Mexico to his cabinet Friday. The inability of the Huerta government to conduct a constitutional election, it is thought, will lead the American government to suggest a method of holding the elections in which safeguards and guarantees can be given which will permit the constitutionalists to participate freely.

Pending such election it may be proposed that some one acceptable to all Mexican factions be placed in provisional authority at the Mexican capital.

Powers Expect Decisive Plan.

It is true that the governments of Great Britain, Germany and France, in response to diplomatic requests from this government not only to them but to other powers, gave assurance that they would await announcement of a plan of action on the part of the United States before adopting any new policies of their own.

The belief is growing that the other interested powers expect this government to adopt a policy of positiveness, one that will make for an early settlement of disturbed conditions in Mexico so that the nationals of all foreign countries will cease to fear for their lives and property rights.

U. S. Sounds Rebel Chief.

Senatorial advisers of President Wilson are urging the lifting of the embargo on arms and ammunition, so that the constitutionalists of Mexico may fully equip themselves and show whether they have the ability to capture the government and run it on a reasonable pacific basis. It is understood the Washington administration has informally sounded Carranza as to his prospective policies of government.

General Carranza, it is understood, refused to commit himself through informal channels, but one of his leading advisers, Roberto Vasquez, is expected in Washington within a day or two. He probably will bear dispatches from the head of the constitutionalist forces which will have an important bearing on the attitude to be assumed by Washington.

Dispatches from American Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy tell of recent meetings of the diplomatic corps in Mexico City at which rather sharp exchanges of opinion took place. One statement is that the representative of Spain charged that the United States was not doing what it should to protect foreigners in northern Mexico. This charge was hotly resented by the American charge d'affaires.

Four Warships to Mexico.

The sailing of four American battleships from Hampton Roads during the day to relieve those at Vera Cruz marked the first step of the United States toward complying with the recent declaration of Huerta that foreign ships had been too long in Mexican waters.

The battleships Rhode Island, Virginia, Nebraska and New Jersey will relieve the four vessels that have been on duty in Mexican waters several months. Rear Admiral Fletcher will continue to command the squadron in Mexican waters.

Bars U. S. Sailors' Ball Game.

Vera Cruz, Oct. 30.—Although teams from the American warships have been playing a baseball game ashore Sundays for months, General Maas, federal commander in Vera Cruz, has refused to permit another such game. He said his decision was due to the "strained relations between Mexico and the United States."

Gen. Felix Diaz probably will be landed by the battleship Louisiana at Key West, whence he may go to Havana.

Transfers Diaz's Followers.

City of Mexico, Oct. 30.—Seven followers of Felix Diaz who were arrested at Vera Cruz were brought to this capital and consigned to the district court. They are accused of planning a revolution in Vera Cruz.

FRIENDS FEAR FOR CASTRO

New Yorkers Believe Rebel Has Been Slain.

New York, Oct. 30.—After a vain search of three months for information regarding his whereabouts, the friends of Gen. Cipriano Castro in this city are convinced that he is either dead or a prisoner in a Venezuelan dungeon.

Injured in Ship Explosion.

Newport News, Va., Oct. 30.—Hemmed in by flames in the foundry room of the battleship New Jersey, when a gasoline tank exploded, one man suffered burns that probably will result in death, while two others were badly burned.

Days Gone By.

The young woman was painting— sunset, red, with blue streaks and green dots. The old rustic—at a respectful distance—was watching. "Ah," said the woman artist, looking up suddenly, and pretending she hadn't known he was there all the time, "perhaps to you, too, Nature has opened her sky pictures page by page? Have you seen the lambent flame of dawn leaping across the livid east; the red-stained, sulphurous islets floating in the lakes of fire in the west; the ragged clouds at midnight, black as a raven's wing, blotting out the shuddering moon?" "No, mum," replied the rustic, shortly; "not since I give up drink."

Various Degrees of Envy.

Envy is a compound of grief and anger. The degrees of this passion depend chiefly on the nearness or remoteness of the objects, as to circumstances. If one who is forced to walk on foot envies a great man for keeping a coach and six, it will never be with that violence, or give him that disturbance which it may to a man who keeps a coach himself, but can only afford to drive with four horses. The symptoms of envy are various and as hard to describe as those of the plague. Among the fair the disease is very common, and the signs of it are very conspicuous in their opinions and censure of one another.—Bernard Mandeville.

BEIER BAKERY IS MAKING NEW BREAD*WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR USED IN NEW PRODUCTION OF DIXON BAKERY.

Otto Beier, the Dixon baker, whose Butter Cream Bread has been so popular in this vicinity, has commenced the production of a new special brand of the "staff of life" which it is believed will prove even more popular than his former kinds. The new bread, which was first placed on the market today, is made from a whole wheat flour and will be known as "Whole Wheat Bread." Those who have tried it state that it has an excellent flavor and abounds in nourishment.

When calling attention to the new bread, Mr. Beier demonstrated to a newspaper man the modern methods in use at his bakery, the exhibition being most interesting to the "pencil pusher." From the large flour room on the third floor where over one and one-half carloads of flour are emptied into the motor-driven sifting machine every month to the big electric mixer in the bake-shop, the reporter was able to follow the process of manufacture.

The flour is emptied into the sifting machine from which it passes into a steel air-tight bin that holds the daily capacity about 4,000 pounds of flour. Later the weighing machine automatically deposits the flour into the four barrel power-driven mixer; thence to the steel troughs where it remains for five hours to proof. Then the dough is ready for the automatic loaf weighing machine where each loaf is automatically conveyed to the moulding machine, which shapes it ready for the bread-pan. The pans are placed on steel trucks and put into the steam-proofing room until the loaves are raised light enough to be put into the large steam oven; which has a capacity of 450 loaves every 20 minutes. When the bread is baked it is placed on steel racks to cool and then is ready for the wrapping and shipping department.

The bakery, which is kalsomined several times a year, is an interesting and sanitary place. Electric power is used throughout; yeast, flour and water heated to the specified temperature, are controlled by automatic machines, and the use of human agencies is eliminated to the greatest possible degree.

Mr. Beier would be pleased to have any one that would like to see an up-to-date bakery call at any time. The bakery is in operation every evening after 7 o'clock.

DRAINAGE CASEGOES TO JURY

POSTOFFICE FIRED; STRIKERS BLAMED

Miners in Colorado Overpower Guards—Building Used by U. S. Is Burned.

MAY DRAW FEDERAL ACTION

Postmaster Says That Mails Were Rifled Before the Building Was Destroyed—No One Injured During Battle.

Trinidad, Colo., Oct. 30.—Fighting among the striking miners in the southern Colorado coal fields shifted from Ludlow and its immediate vicinity to Aguilar, six miles north of the big Ludlow tent colony. Possible federal complications were precipitated at the office of the Southwestern Fuel company, where a battle waged between strikers and a handful of mine guards.

Money Is Destroyed.

After defeating the guards and recapturing the mine office, in which the postoffice also is situated, the strikers are charged with having knocked over a stove, setting fire to the building which was destroyed, together with its contents of United States mail, money orders and money.

Postmaster Arthur Samples declared evidences were present that the mail had been rifled before the building was fired, since envelopes, opened, were found near by, half burned.

The mine office also was destroyed with all its contents, the camp having been surrendered wholly by the guards.

Attack Empire Mine.

The miners then went to the Empire mine of the same company and there began an attack. No resistance was offered them and they withdrew shortly, doing no more damage than riddling the boiler-house with bullets. No one was injured in either camp.

ADD TO RESERVE BOARD

Senators Increase Membership to Nine and Eliminate Two.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Important changes in the administration currency bill resulted from the first day's executive work on the measure by the senate committee.

The committee passed over for last action the proposition to substitute a central government controlled bank for the regional bank plan in the bill, on which the members were evenly divided.

The complexion of the proposed federal reserve board was materially altered by the amendments adopted, and it probably will be further changed. It was decided to increase the membership of the board from seven, as fixed in the house bill, to nine, and eliminate the secretary of agriculture and the comptroller of the currency from service on the board.

Make This and Try It for Coughs

This Home-Made Remedy has no Equal for Prompt Results.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else you ever used. Usually conquers an ordinary cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup and bronchitis. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualac and other natural pine elements which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this plan.

Making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful mixture has never been equalled.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Will of Late Brewer Gives Son Managing Power.

Charitable Institutions Are to Get $210,000—Bulk of Estate Is Put in Trust.

St. Louis, Oct. 29.—Adolphus Busch's will filed here makes charitable bequests aggregating $170,000 to St. Louis institutions and places the bulk of the will in trust, naming Mr. Busch's widow, Charles Nagel and August A. Busch as trustees.

Mr. Busch left a private memorandum requesting members of his family to make other donations. The attorneys made public the names of eight St. Louis institutions to receive under this memorandum a total of $40,000. This makes the total bequests for charitable purposes $210,000.

The estate disposed of by the will is estimated at $50,000,000. The trust is to be disposed as follows:

One-eighth to the widow, Mrs. Lilly Busch.

Seven-eighths to be divided into seven equal shares. These shares are to be apportioned as follows:

Two shares to August A. Busch, 2d son.

One share to be retained by the trustees for each of the daughters—Mrs. Nellie Loeb of Chicago, Mrs. Edme Reisinger of New York, Mrs. Anna Louise Faust of St. Louis, Mrs. Clara von Gontard of Berlin and Mrs. Wellhime Scherer, wife of Lieut. Eduard Scherer of the German army.

The estate placed in trust includes all property except the charitable bequests and the legacy of Mrs. Busch. August A. Busch is to be president of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing association. He is made responsible for the care of his invalid brother Carl, who is to be supplied with all necessities and wants up to $12,000 a year.

The will specifies that the trustees may pay at once to each of the daughters $100,000 out of her share, and that the balance shall be managed by the trustees for the daughters for the rest of their lives.

The trustees are given authority to pay to Mrs. Reisinger, Mrs. Faust and Mrs. von Gontard such portion of their shares as deemed wise. This provision does not apply to the two other daughters, Mrs. Loeb and Mrs. Scherer. Neither of these two daughters shall have the right to sell, assign or mortgage her interest in the trust estate or the income therefrom.

DISCUSS VALUE OF ROADS

Railway Commissioners in Session at Washington.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Discussion of the valuation of the property of public utilities, especially of railroads, took up the time of the delegates attending the annual meeting of the National Association of Railway Commissioners here today. The association met in the rooms of the Interstate commerce commission.

Max Thelan, member of the California Railroad Commission and attorney for the commission, cited various decisions of the supreme court to show that as yet that court has not definitely established the basis on which public utility rates are to be calculated. "While the court has said that the fair value of the property is to be used as the basis, it has not clearly analyzed what constitutes a fair value," said Mr. Thelan.

ILLINOIS NEWS NOTES

Chicago—Delegates of more than 45,000 railroad employees today formulated a demand for increased wages and better working conditions at a meeting of the Western Car-men's Association. The demand will affect fifty-six railroads operating from Chicago west to the Pacific coast and increases will be asked for engineers, firemen, switchmen, conductors and brakemen. The demands, it was said, will be sent direct to mediators or to the board of arbitration in case mediators fail to effect an agreement. No strike is expected. Details of the demands will be kept secret until Nov. 10.

Springfield—Deputy state fire marshals will assist a committee of fifty from the Illinois Fire Prevention Association in an inspection tomorrow of the business district of Peoria.

Following the inspection of each building, the proprietors of stores will be divided of any changes which any member of the committee would recommend in the furtherance of a state-wide campaign for the prevention of losses by fire.

Decatur—In the first election other than school elections, the women of Decatur today showed slight interest by casting only about one-fifth of the total vote on the propositions of annexing two tracts of land, approving a street car franchise, a telephone franchise and a filter plant bond issue. Of the total vote of 3,759 the women cast 836 votes. The vote was light, the estimated voting strength of the city, including women, being near 12,000. All propositions carried by large majorities.

Danville: Crazy because his sweet heart, Anna Karitas, had jilted him, John Don Savage shot and fatally wounded the girl today and then blew out his own brains. The marriage had been postponed from time to time and Don this morning refused to submit to another postponement.

Geneva—A man believed to be H. Buesing of West Chicago, was found dead under the porch of a partially completed dwelling here today. Wounds on his body indicated that he had been struck by an automobile or some fast moving vehicle. The Geneva police expressed the belief that some motorist had run down the man and seeing that his injuries likely would result fatally, dragged his nearly lifeless form over the slender path leading to the porch, hid him and sped away.

Jacksonville—William G. Mohlmann, an undertaker and leading furniture dealer of Beardstown and prominent in lodge circles was found dead in the Illinois river near that place. He had started up the river alone the evening before to Brownsville, Ill., in his gasoline launch on a hunting trip. It is supposed he decided to return home on account of the heavy fog and when near the landing fell off the launch. He was 40 years old and leaves a widow and two children.

Shelbyville—Ralph Lucas, 60 years old, and a resident of Windsor, was killed by a Big Four fast mail train near his home while walking on the track. His indifference to the approach of the train, which was running at high speed, is thought to have been caused by worry over the condition of his son, who is critically ill with fever.

At the time of the accident Mr. Lucas was going to the business district of the city to buy supplies for supper. He is survived by a wife and four children. The body will be taken to his old home in Kentucky for burial.

Quincy—William B. Ehrhardt, of 1114 Hampshire street, died from injuries sustained when he was thrown to the pavement in front of the Koch harness shop on Maine street by being hit by the electric coupe of William T. Duker, driven by Mr. Duker's son, William T. Duker, Jr., generally known as Duker Junior.

The car was moving so slowly that Mr. Ehrhardt was not dragged at all being merely thrown backward violently to the pavement, sustaining a fracture of the base of the skull behind the left ear, accompanied by laceration of the brain structure, producing a compression which brought about death.

Aurora—Arthur Grauer, six years old, stood up in a wagon on the farm of his father, Edward Grauer, two miles south of Aurora on the Montgomery road, to show his little sister

Margaret, four years old, "how they do in the circus." The horses became frightened and gave a sudden jerk. He pitched forward under the feet of the horses.

The girl had never been in the circus. She clapped her hands with glee when she saw her "big brother" pitch forward and turn a somersault in the air.

Grauer, the father, standing less than five feet away, was horror stricken at the circus trick. He saw his boy fall under the hind feet of the horses and grab frantically at the front axle of the wagon to save himself. The father jumped towards the wagon, but it was too late. The frail arm of the six-year-old boy was not strong enough to hold to the wagon axle and he released his hold. Then one of the hind wheels of the heavy wagon, nearly filled with corn passed over his little chest. He died in a short time.

Rockford—Foul play may have caused the death of an unidentified man whose body was found floating in Rock River here this morning. Coroner McAllister could find no marks on body, but says that if the man had drowned he would not be floating. No letters or papers on the body give any clue as to the man's identity. He seems about 30 years of age.

Morgan's Particular Fad. Among the many collections of art objects J. Pierpont Morgan has made in this country and in Europe is one of exactly 999 miniatures that are in his London house in Prince's Gate. The little pictures are not hung on screens in the usual manner, but are kept in a cabinet whose tray-like shelves are lined with black velvet, each miniature being securely fastened to the bottom of the tray. A New Yorker going through the Morgan house while on a recent visit to London asked the guide who was showing him over the house why Mr. Morgan didn't buy another miniature and make the collection an even thousand. "Oh, that is one of his particular pets, that odd number," was the reply.

Worthy Modesty. Alvo Yusuph, chief judge of Bagdad, was remarkable for the modesty which accompanies wisdom. Once, after a long investigation of the facts of a case, he publicly confessed that his knowledge was not sufficient to enable him to decide it. "Pray," said a pert courtier, "do you expect the caliph to pay you for your ignorance?" "I do not," meekly answered the judge; "the caliph pays me well for what I know; if he were to attempt to pay me for what I do not know, the treasures of his empire would not suffice."

Julius Gottlieb, merchant, 418 W. First St., Dixon, Ill., says: "My back had been causing me trouble. Often it was so lame and sore that it was hard to bend over. The kidney action was irregular and I knew that my kidneys were disordered. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Leake Bros. Co's Drug store. They did such good work that I recommended them. I am glad to do so again."

Kept the Waiters Busy.

A party of tourists which recently traveled over a Canadian railroad continuously for five days was served during that time, on the dining cars, with 660 meals daily or 3,300 meals in all. This was done on two standard dining cars, each having a seating capacity of thirty persons and managed by one conductor, four cooks and five waiters. At this rate each waiter served at each meal an average of twenty-two persons, and each chair would be used an average of three and two-thirds times at each meal.—Railway Age Gazette.

Italians Abroad.

Estimates made by the Italian Bureau of Emigration show that fully 5,557,746 Italians, or about one-seventh of the entire population of Italy, are living abroad. The chief countries where they are found are the United States, 1,779,659; Brazil, 1,500,000; Argentina, 1,000,000, and Uruguay, 100,000. There is practically no country in the world without an Italian colony. The following are the three smallest Italian colonies in the world: Azores, 17 Italians; Corea, 10, and the Island of Madeira, 7.—New York Sun.

Plan to Use Electric Heat.

Several towns in Norway and Sweden have recently taken steps toward the general introduction of electric heating, to replace the use of stoves burning coal or wood. Few buildings in these places have central heating systems, and the tile stoves now generally used could easily be adapted to receive electric heaters. The electric current will be supplied by the public plants, which are generally run by water power.

City People Religious.

Kansas City, Mo., ranks next to Philadelphia among the large cities of the country for its religious habits. A census recently taken enumerated 22,000 names, and among these 47 per cent. were affiliated with some church. Philadelphia is one per cent. higher.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD.

The bread of the Romans was Whole Wheat Bread, that was centuries before millers, in order to make flour white, began robbing it of the outer shell of the wheat containing the vital mineral phosphates. Whole Wheat Bread comes from our oven baked through and through, crisp and sweet. Try a nice 10 cent loaf. Baked Tuesday and Friday of each week at Deier's Steam Bakery. 573

Oysters are now caught by steamers, power boats and fast sailing vessels, delivered promptly at the shipping houses. They are thus not subject to the delays formerly experienced. They are kept cold by artificial refrigeration and by pure artificial Ice. Oysters, either in shell or opened, are now shipped from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific, arriving there in as perfect condition as when taken from the water. There is no place in the United States or British America where the railroads penetrate in which oysters cannot be received in perfect condition.

A quart of bulk Oysters weighs two pounds at 40c per quart equals 20c per pound and no waste. They are not a luxury. They are a cheap meat.
